FAHERTY AND MRF
ASSOCIATES, INC.'S
MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT OF THEIR MOTION TO DISMISS PURSUANT TO FRCP 12(B)(2) FOR LACK OF PERSONAL JURISDICTION

Date: October 5, 2015

Complaint Filed: April 1, 2015
Trial Date: None

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

Defendants Michelle Faherty and MRF Associates (collectively hereinafter the "MRF Defendants" or the "Defendants") respectfully submit this Memorandum in support of their Motion to Dismiss Pursuant to Rule 12(b)(2) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure for Lack of Personal Jurisdiction. For the reasons that follow, the Court should grant MRF Defendants' Motion and dismiss them from the instant action. The Defendants respectfully request that this Court permit oral argument on this Motion at the September 21, 2015 conference, or as soon thereafter as this Court may permit.

STATEMENT OF RELEVANT FACTS

The Complaint of the Plaintiffs, Crafty Productions, Inc. and Crafty Productions LLC (collectively hereinafter as “Crafty” or “CPI”) comprises a rambling, disjointed series of vague allegations by the Plaintiffs against approximately twenty (20) defendants, alleging a tale of copyright infringement, trade dress infringement, breach of contract, and related claims over its alleged proprietary craft products. The Plaintiffs have brought this omnibus action against a variety of Chinese companies and retailers, while dragging in Defendants Faherty and MRF Associates. Discerning the allegations against the MRF Defendants in this mishmash of a Complaint is a challenge, as is sifting through the claims of this supposed wide-ranging conspiracy.

With her business MRF Associates, Michelle Faherty is a manufacturers' representative in craft products, residing in Hopedale, Massachusetts, which is a suburb in the greater metropolitan Boston region. Faherty's manufacturers' representative business is conducted almost exclusively by telephone and by email and/or text, and she dealt with the Plaintiffs through electronic communications and by telephone. Excluding a social, "grab a cup of coffee" meeting long after their business relationship ended, the MRF Defendants never had any in-person meetings with the Plaintiffs in California. Indeed, after the Fuqing/Crafty transaction in early

1 2014 and as set forth in the Complaint and its attachments (See Complaint, ¶ 40 & 2 Exhibits N-Q), Faherty and MRF had no business dealings whatsoever with the 3 Plaintiffs.

4 In sharp contrast to the retailer defendants and/or the Chinese defendants, 5 Defendant Faherty has no stores or physical locations in any state (other than her 6 home in Hopedale, Massachusetts), never had a written contract with the Plaintiffs as 7 to her manufacturers' representative business, and never received a single payment 8 from Crafty. Except for a social, "grab a cup of coffee" visit in November 2014, 9 Faherty never met with Crafty or Paula Mello in California.

10 Furthermore, as the Complaint details, CPI entered into a series of agreements 11 with Defendant Zhu and Fuqing, in which Defendant Fuqing allegedly obtained a 12 33 % ownership in CPI, was supposedly obligated to make a $100,000 contribution, 13 provide sales reports, royalties and other obligations. Unfortunately for the 14 Plaintiffs, the MRF Defendants have nothing to do with these transactions, were 15 never a party to them, and were essentially cut out of any ongoing business by the 16 transaction.

17 As described below, there is no basis for this Court to assert personal 18 jurisdiction over the MRF Defendants in the Southern District of California, and no 19 reason for Faherty to believe that she would be haled into federal court in such 20 forum. This Court should dismiss the Complaint as to Defendants Faherty and MRF 21 Associates for lack of personal jurisdiction.

22 ARGUMENT

23 I. THE COMPLAINT SHOULD BE DISMISSED AGAINST THE 24 MRF DEFENDANTS FOR LACK OF PERSONAL JURISDICTION

25 A. Standard of Review

26 Under Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(2), CPI bears the burden of establishing that this 27 Court has personal jurisdiction over MRF Defendants. See Boschetto v. Hansing, 28 539 F.3d 1011, 1011 (9th Cir. 2008). Here, CPI cannot "simply rest on the bare

1 allegations of its complaint,” but rather must “come forward with facts, by affidavit 2 or otherwise, supporting personal jurisdiction.” Amba Marketing Systems, Inc. v.
 3 Jobar Intern., 551 F.2d 784, 787 (9th Cir. 1977).

4 CPI must demonstrate that personal jurisdiction is appropriate under 5 California’s long-arm statute and that the exercise of jurisdiction comports with the 6 requirements of the Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment of the United 7 States Constitution. See Cal. Code. Civ. Proc. §410.10; see also Peterson v.
 8 Highland Music, Inc., 140 F.3d 1313, 1317 n. 2 (9th Cir. 1998). A court may 9 exercise personal jurisdiction over a non-resident defendant consistent with due 10 process only if he or she has “certain minimum contacts” with the forum state “such 11 that the maintenance of the suit does not offend traditional notions of fair play and 12 substantial justice.” Int’l Shoe Co. v. Washington, 326 U.S. 310, 316, 66 S.Ct. 154, 13 90 L.Ed. 95 (1945)(internal quotations omitted). There are two forms of personal 14 jurisdiction that a forum state may exercise over a non-resident defendant – general 15 jurisdiction and personal jurisdiction. For the reasons stated below, the MRF 16 Defendants are subject to neither.

17 B. The Court Lacks General Jurisdiction Because the MRF 18 Defendants’ Contacts with California Do Not “Approximate Physical Presence.”

19 General jurisdiction exists where the business contacts with the forum state are 20 so substantial, continuous and systematic that they “approximate physical presence.”
 21 Bancroft & Masters, Inc. v. Augusta Nat’l Inc., 223 F.3d 1082, 1086 (9th Cir. 2000).
 22 The types of contacts with a forum state determined by courts to confirm general 23 jurisdiction include, ownership of property, the maintenance of bank accounts, 24 having employees, soliciting business, or having a designated agent in the state. See 25 Glencore Grain v. Shivnath Rai Harnarain, 284 F.3d 1114, 1124-25 (9th Cir. 2002).
 26 Conversely, “engaging in commerce with residents of the forum state is not in and 27 of itself the kind of activity that approximates physical presence within the state’s 28 borders.” Bancroft & Masters, Inc., 223 F.3d at 1086.

1 The MRF Defendants' contacts with California do not approximate those 2 necessary to confer general jurisdiction. See generally, Declaration of Michelle 3 Faherty (hereinafter the "Faherty Declaration"). Like the defendant in Glencore
 4 Grain, who the court found lacked the necessary contacts to support general 5 jurisdiction, the MRF Defendants do not own property, maintain bank accounts, 6 have employees, solicit business, or have a designated agent in the state of 7 California. Therefore, this Court does not have general personal jurisdiction over 8 the MRF Defendants.

9 C. The Court Lacks Specific Jurisdiction Because the MRF
 10 Defendants Have Not Purposefully Directed Activity to California, 11 and because the exercise of jurisdiction would be unreasonable.

12 Courts in the Ninth Circuit use a three-part test to determine whether specific 13 jurisdiction exists: (i) the nonresident defendant must purposefully direct his 14 activities or consummate some transaction with the forum or residents thereof; or 15 perform some act by which he purposefully avails himself of the privilege of 16 conducting activities in the forum, thereby invoking the benefits and protections of 17 its laws; (ii) the claim must be one which arises out of or relates to the defendant's 18 forum-related activities; and (iii) the exercise of jurisdiction must comport with fair 19 play and substantial justice, i.e., it must be reasonable. Boshcetto v. Hansing, 539 20 F.3d at 1016. All three prongs must be met, and the inability to satisfy any of the 21 aforementioned prongs will result in the failure to establish jurisdiction over the 22 defendant. Schwarzenegger v. Fred Martin Motor Co., 374 F.3d 797, 802 (9th Cir.
 23 2004). Moreover, the plaintiff bears the burden of satisfying the first two prongs of 24 the test. Id. If the plaintiff succeeds in satisfying both of the first two prongs, the 25 burden shifts to the defendant to "present a compelling case" that the exercise of jurisdiction would not be reasonable. Id.

26 The Ninth Circuit analyzes the first two prongs for personal jurisdiction, 27 purposeful availment and purposeful direction, as two separate analyses. In tort 28 cases involving purposeful direction, the Court evaluates such prong under the

1 “effects” test from Calder v. Jones, 465 U.S. 783 (1984). See Dole Food Co, Inc. v.
 2 Watts, 303 F.3d 1104 (9th Cir. 2002). Under Calder, the “effects” tests requires that 3 the defendant allegedly (1) committed an intentional act, (2) expressly aimed at the 4 forum state, (3) causing harm that the defendant knows is likely to be suffered in the 5 forum state. Id.

6 In analyzing the second prong required for personal jurisdiction, that a claim 7 must arise out of the defendant’s forum-related activities, the courts apply a “but for” 8 test. John Doe v. Unocal Corp., 248 F.3d 915, 924 (9th Cir. 2001). The “but for” test 9 is a simple test where the Plaintiff must demonstrate that the claims against the 10 Defendant would not have arisen “but for” the Defendant’s contacts with the forum 11 state. See Ballard v. Savage, 65 F.3d 1495, 1500 (9th Cir. 1995).

12 If the Plaintiff meets its burden of satisfying the first two prongs, then the 13 Court must analyze the third and final prong for jurisdiction, reasonableness, by 14 considering the following seven factors: (1) the extent of the defendant’s purposeful 15 interjection into the forum state’s affairs; (2) the burden on the defendant of 16 defending in the forum; (3) the extent of conflict with the sovereignty of the 17 defendant’s state; (4) the forum state’s interest in adjudicating the dispute; (5) the 18 most efficient judicial resolution of the controversy; (6) the importance of the forum 19 to the plaintiff’s interests in convenient and effective relief; and (7) the existence of 20 an alternative forum. Core-Vent Corp. v. Nobel Industries AB, 11 F.3d 1482, 1487-21 88 (9th Cir. 1993). None of the factors are dispositive, and they must be balanced 22 together. Id.

23 1. The MRF Defendants Have Not Purposefully Directed 24 Activity to the State of California.

25 Under the first prong of a specific jurisdiction test, CPI must demonstrate that 26 the MRF Defendants “purposefully availed” themselves of the privilege of 27 conducting activities in California, or purposefully directed its activities towards 28 California. Schwarzenegger, 374 F.3d at 802. While the Courts typically use

1 “purposeful availment” in shorthand fashion to include both purposeful availment 2 and purposeful direction, “availment” and “direction” are two distinct concepts that 3 undergo two distinct analyses. Id. Purposeful availment, which involves a showing 4 that a defendant purposefully availed himself of the privilege of doing business in a 5 forum state, typically consists of evidence of the defendant’s actions in the forum, 6 such as executing or performing a contract in the forum. Id. at 803. Purposeful 7 direction, by contrast, involves a showing that a defendant purposefully directed his 8 tortious conduct toward the forum state, and applies the three-part Calder effects test 9 promulgated by the U.S. Supreme Court. Id. CPI fails to satisfy the first prong of the 10 jurisdictional analysis regardless of whether a purposeful availment or purposeful 11 direction test is utilized.

Purposeful Availment

13 “The purposeful availment inquiry ... focuses on the defendant's 14 intentionality.” See Snowney v. Harrah's Entertainment, Inc., 35 Cal.4th 1054, 1062
15 (2005). This prong is only satisfied when the defendant purposefully and voluntarily 16 directs activities toward the forum so that the defendant should expect, by virtue of 17 the benefit it receives, to be subject to the court's jurisdiction based its contacts with 18 the forum. Id.

19 To the extent that the MRF Defendants’ alleged contacts with California were 20 in response to CPI’s initiated communications, such contacts do not support personal 21 jurisdiction. Foreseeability requires that the contacts also must be of a nature that the 22 defendant could reasonably anticipate being haled into court there. World Wide
23 Volkswagen Corp. v. Woodson, 444 U.S. 286, 287 (1980). As such, the MRF 24 Defendants’ mere awareness of CPI’s presence in California is not sufficient to 25 establish personal jurisdiction. Moreover, inter-party communications “by phone or 26 mail are insufficient to demonstrate purposeful availment.”

Purposeful Direction

For claims sounding in tort, the purposeful direction requirement for specific jurisdiction is analyzed under the “effects” test derived from Calder v. Jones, 465 U.S. 783. See also Menken v. Emm, 503 F.3d 1050, 1059 (9th Cir. 2007) (holding that where the “cause of action arises primarily in tort...Calder’s “effects” test is the proper framework”). A claim for copyright infringement sounds in tort. Brayton Purcell LLP v. Recordon & Recordon, 361 F. Supp. 2d 1135, 1140 (N.D. Cal. 2007). Calder’s effects test requires that the defendant allegedly have (1) committed an intentional act, (2) expressly aimed at the forum state, (3) causing harm that the defendant knows is likely to be suffered in the forum state. Menken 503 F.3d at 1058. While CPI has alleged that the MRF Defendants committed an intentional act, the remaining requirements of Calder’s effects test are lacking.

a. The MRF Defendants Did Not Commit an Intentional Act “Expressly Aimed” at California.

15 The second prong of the Calder test, the requirement of “express aiming” is 16 satisfied where the defendant is alleged to have engaged in wrongful conduct 17 targeted at a plaintiff whom the defendant knows to be a resident of the forum state.
18 Calder 465 U.S. at 789. As a non-party to the transactions with Fuqing, and having 19 no involvement with CPI’s business in California, the MRF Defendants could not 20 reasonably anticipate, let alone expressly aim, any harm towards the Plaintiffs.

b. The MRF Defendants Did Not Knowingly Cause CPI to Suffer Harm in California.

Even if the “express aiming” requirement were satisfied, CPI has failed to demonstrate that, by its pleadings or its voluminous Exhibits, the MRF Defendants knowingly caused CPI to suffer harm in California. The Pleadings are devoid of any allegations which reflect that MRF or Faherty caused harm to be suffered by CPI in California. As a result, the Plaintiffs have failed to meet this prong of the Ninth Circuit’s test.

1 2. The MRF Defendants have no meaningful contact with 2 California and their alleged acts do not arise from contact 2 with California.

3 The second prong for specific jurisdiction is that plaintiff's claim arises out of 4 defendant's forum-related activities. Core-Vent Corp., 11 F.3d at 1485. In analyzing 5 whether the plaintiff's claims arise out of the defendant's forum-related activities, the 6 courts apply a "but for" test. John Doe, 248 F.3d at 924. The "but for" test is a 7 simple test where the Plaintiff must demonstrate that the Plaintiff's claims against the 8 Defendant would not have arisen "but for" the Defendant's contact with the forum 9 state. See Ballard 65 F.3d at 1500.

10 The evidence upon which CPI relies is improperly authenticated evidence.
11 It would not be sufficient to find that CPI's claims against the MRF Defendants 12 would not have arisen but for the MRF Defendants' alleged contacts with California.

13 As stated above, the crux of CPI's claims against the MRF Defendants is that 14 MRF Defendants allegedly helped reproduce, distribute and/or sell "knock off" 15 and/or substantially similar copies of CPI's original designs and products. CPI's 16 claims do not pertain to the MRF Defendants' alleged connection to California, but 17 rather to the MRF Defendants' contacts in China. Accordingly, CPI's claims against 18 the MRF Defendants are not asserted "but for" MRF Defendants' alleged contacts in 19 California – rather, those claims are solely focused on the MRF Defendants' activity 20 and business contacts in and about China and across the United States.

21 3. The Exercise of Jurisdiction Over the MRF Defendants Is Not 22 Reasonable

23 The third part of the personal jurisdiction analysis examines whether the 24 exercise of the jurisdiction would be reasonable. Courts consider the seven factors 25 listed above when making this determination. These factors weigh in favor of the 26 MRF Defendants.

27 The first factor has been discussed in detail above. The MRF Defendants' only 28 contact with California involved electronic communications with the Plaintiff and

1 one in-person meeting in November 2014. The MRF Defendants did not purposely 2 direct sales towards California. Further, the MRF Defendants do not live in 3 California, do not operate a California business, do not have California-based 4 employees, do not have a registered agent in the state, and do not advertise in the 5 state. The MRF Defendants, then, can hardly be said to “purposefully interject” into 6 California’s affairs.

7 Additionally and with respect to the second factor, the burden on the MRF 8 Defendants of defending in California is substantial. Defendant Faherty operates 9 MRF Associates as a small company. She has no employees, and runs the entire 10 business by herself from her home. Defending in California would require Faherty to 11 travel across the country, an expensive and time-consuming proposition given that 12 she is the sole person running her business. (Faherty Decl.) This factor favors the 13 MRF Defendants.

14 The third factor is neutral, as there is no apparent conflict between the 15 sovereignty of California and Massachusetts.

16 Regarding the fourth factor, the MRF Defendants assert that California has 17 little to no interest in adjudicating this dispute. Although Crafty is a California 18 business, the allegations involve business activities and events throughout the United 19 States and in China. Faherty is a small piece of an alleged wide-ranging copyright 20 infringement action, and other states, including the Commonwealth of 21 Massachusetts, have a comparable interest in adjudicating this dispute.

22 The fifth factor, concerning the efficiency of the forum, is neutral. “In 23 evaluating this factor, [the courts look] primarily at where the witnesses and the 24 evidence are likely to be located.” Core-Vent Corp 11 F.3d at 1489. In this case, the 25 federal courts in California are comparable to the federal courts throughout the 26 country, and in Massachusetts.

27 The convenience and effectiveness of relief for the plaintiff comprise the sixth 28 factor. “[I]n this circuit, the plaintiff’s convenience is not of paramount importance.”

1 Dole Foods Co., 303 F.3d at 1116. While it may be more convenient for CPI to have 2 this dispute adjudicated in California, it is hard to see how resolution of the case in 3 California would be any more effective than in Massachusetts. Given the weight 4 accorded this fact by the Ninth Circuit courts, it is largely without importance.

5 The seventh and final factor is the availability of an alternate forum. CPI bears 6 the burden of proving the unavailability of an alternative forum. Core-Vent Corp., 11 7 F.3d at 1490. CPI cannot meet its burden in this regard. It cannot be disputed that, 8 because the MRF Defendants reside in Massachusetts, Massachusetts provides an 9 alternative forum for this dispute. Weighing all of these seven considerations, the 10 balance of factors clearly favors the MRF Defendants.

11 As demonstrated above, this court can assert neither general nor specific 12 personal jurisdiction over the MRF Defendants.

CONCLUSION

14 As set forth above, the MRF Defendants respectfully submit that this Court 15 should dismiss the instant action pursuant to Rule 12(b)(2) of the Federal Rules of 16 Civil Procedure for lack of personal jurisdiction. The MRF Defendants contend that 17 they are not subject to personal jurisdiction in this state and they must be dismissed 18 from this action. The MRF Defendants respectfully request oral argument on this 19 Motion at the September 21, 2015 conference.
